

Mosaic Collection by Topex[®] Hardware Inspired by Ancient Art

Thousands of years of storytelling through mosaic art now takes shape in the home in the form of cabinet hardware

(Elmwood Park, NJ, March 6, 2013) Topex[®] Hardware, international manufacturer of decorative hardware and bath vanities, has put a fresh twist on an age-old medium with its latest collection, Mosaic. Inspired by one of the oldest and most beautiful art forms, the Mosaic collection fuses small squares of Zamak—a zinc alloy that blends elements of aluminum, magnesium and copper—to create a pixelated effect of peaks, plains, and valleys on each piece of hardware. The combination alloy boasts Titan-like strength that is far more stalwart than zinc alone, making it a perfect choice for hardworking kitchen and bath spaces.

Three styles make up the collection: a pull, a knob and a horseshoe. The geometry of the shapes beautifully showcases the mosaic detail on each surface. In addition, three finishes completely alter the look of the pieces to give the collection the versatile advantage of complementing a wide variety of home décor styles. The Venetian bronze finish, for example, blends rustic, traditional or Arts and Crafts style furnishings. Matte Satin Nickel offers a sophisticated look of luxury, while the lustrous Bright Chrome speaks to contemporary spaces.

List prices for the collection range from $11 to $18.80.
